2025 marks the 250th anniversary of Jane Austen,
one of the most celebrated authors in literary history.

Austen has drawn generations of readers into her 18th-century world of Regency England, and her premature death at the age of forty-one left a legacy of universal acclaim. We honor that legacy with an invitation to stroll along with Old Friends and New Fancies, an imaginary fan fiction sequel intertwining Jane's famous novels and characters.

Old Friends and New Fancies

Sybil G. Brinton

What happens beyond "happily ever after"? Sybil G. Brinton's 1913 novel reimagines characters from Jane Austen's six beloved works in a charming tale of love, heartbreak, and redemption. Blending wit and humor in a story that foreshadows modern fandom and fan fiction, Old Friends and New Fancies is the second title in the Dover Romance series, a sister series to Dover Mystery Classics and Dover Thrift Editions.

Week 1

Dark Strokes on Light Strokes

We are going to start slowly... with rocks! With the brush, apply strokes of verdigris paint mix to the paper to create these little rocks.

Paint mix is a color that is more or less diluted. Try prepare the colored paint mix in a little well of your watercolor box, in a large enough quantity so you don't have to remix the color.

When some rocks are dry, draw darker strokes on top of them, overlapping the colors.

For the reflections of the rocks, wait for the paper to be just moist—it has almost returned to a matte finish—so that these reflections are sharper than those of the plants.

This exercise is more difficult. You will start over several times before finding the right touch, the right amount of water, and the right timing to paint on wet paper. Each trial will be different. That's one of the charms of watercolor: it's impossible to obtain the same result twice!

For More Practice

What do you think about this little pond, which has plants and mossy rocks on the edge?

For the reflections of the plants, place the color on paper when it's quite wet. For the reflections of the rocks, wait until the paper is almost dry.

Have you noticed that the rocks in the foreground are darker? That way, they seem closer and give depth to your composition.
